The Challenge of Implementation

- Need to define and communicate the change in philosophy to a dual customer approach
- Need to create new employer-specific services
- Need to partner with other components of the workforce system
- How?
Using the VR Program Management Framework

- One approach is to use the Management Framework, which supports an integrated perspective for managing change.
- All VR programs operate in a unique context, and this framework promotes adaptability and flexibility, recognizing these differences.
The VR Program Management Framework

- Leadership
- Mission & Strategic Planning
- Customers
- Communication
- Workforce & Human Resources
- Services & Processes
- Partnerships
- Data, Quality Assurance, & Metrics
- Outcomes
Leadership, Mission, Strategic Plan

- Top level commitment to defined goals and values in relation to the role of employers and labor market information in the new world of WIOA
- Mission needs to address the needs of both individuals with disabilities and employers
- Strategic Plan should include the new dual customer approach and the short-term and long-term objectives by which the change will be measured
Customers

- Responsive to the needs of multiple customers within the framework of the agency goals and values
- Change in philosophy for some agencies to recognize the employer as an equal customer, which is where the agency values become increasingly important
Communication

- Multiple lines of communication – who needs to know what? And when?
  - Internal: Importance of communication between counselors and employment staff
  - External: Communication with customers, partner agencies, workforce system, employers
- Clear expectations around the services to be delivered to employers, and both the quantitative and qualitative outcomes that will be achieved
Services and Processes

- Models vary between states. Considerations:
  - Alignment with core values
  - Performance improvement approaches
  - Quality measures
  - Customer service
  - Statewide consistency
Services/Processes (cont’d)

- Resource: Checklist*
  - Recognize employers as end-customers
  - Manage your employer partnerships
  - Develop talent solutions for employer partners
  - Align performance and incentives to employer measures
  - Share performance data across network partners
  - Develop recruitment strategies based on employer partnerships

Partnerships

- Mutual cooperation and responsibility
  - Alignment with mission
  - Mutual benefit
  - Active engagement in decision making
- Workforce partners are also working closely with employers, and the work needs to be coordinated and aligned in a way that benefits employers, job seekers, and the overall workforce system
Outcomes

• WIOA presents new performance accountability measures, and the system as a whole needs to be designed to meet these new targets
• New outcome goals need to be developed within the system and then clearly communicated to all staff
• Data needs to be relevant and inform decision making
